Text President Obama, "A Just and Lasting Peace"

CLAIM: President Obama argues that while violence can be controlled and society is progressively more peaceful, the world faces threats that inevitably require war to preserve the peace.
Point 1 Human violence is both fundamental and controllable		Point 2 War is necessary to achieve peace
A Supporting Evidence "War, in one form or another, appeared with the first man" (Reference: lines 46-47)	B Supporting Evidence "codes of law sought to control violence within groups" (Reference: line 31)	A Supporting Evidence "We must begin by acknowledging the hard truth that we will not eradicate violent conflict in our lifetimes." (Reference: lines 70-71)	B Supporting Evidence "A non-violent movement could not have halted Hitler's armies." (Reference: lines 81-82)
C Supporting Evidence "it became clear to victor and vanquished alike that the world needed institutions to prevent another World War" (Reference: lines 45-47)	D Supporting Evidence "The ideals of liberty, self-determination, equality and the rule of law have haltingly advanced" (Reference: lines 55-56)	C Supporting Evidence "The service and sacrifice of our men and women in uniform has promoted peace and prosperity from Germany to Korea, and enabled democracy to take hold in places like the Balkans." (Reference: lines 90-92)	D Supporting Evidence "the instruments of war do have a role to play in preserving the peace" (Reference: line 96)

CLAIM: King and Obama make arguments against and for violence respectively; however, King's rhetoric utilizes emotion and values, or pathos, to advance his idea of a "genuine civilization," while Obama uses logic and realism to advance his idea of facing the "world as it is."
