

APPROACHING THE TEXT		What are my reading purposes? To analyze details Rinehart uses to describe her experience.
Before reading, I consider what my specific purposes for reading are.
I also take note of key information about the text.	Title: KINGS, QUEENS AND PAWNS: An American Woman at the Front	Author: Mary Roberts Rinehart	Source/Publisher: George H. Doran Company
		Text Type: non-fiction	Publication Date: 1915
		What do I already understand about the text based on this information? The book is by an American woman at a "front" in 1915.

QUESTIONING THE TEXT		Guiding questions for my first reading of the text: What is described in detail? What is the author saying about the topic?
As I read the text for the first time, I use guiding questions that relate to my reading purpose and focus. (Can be taken from the Guiding Questions handout).
AS I READ I MARK DETAILS ON THE TEXT THAT RELATE TO MY GUIDING QUESTIONS.
As I re-read, I use questions I have about specific details that have emerged in my reading to focus my analysis and deepen my understanding.		Text-specific questions to help focus my re-reading of the text: Rinehart says that "Nothing that they have said can be too strong" about the conditions of the trenches. What does she mean by this phrase and what details support this point of view?	